PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Dear Students,

ANUBHA SRIVASTAVA

The rain is a friend who whispers, 'Let the earth sing and the sky dance.' Let the leaves quiver in joy, and the flowers smile in bloom. —John Mark Green

As the monsoon clouds gather and the rains begin to dance upon our school grounds, there is a palpable sense of renewal and rejuvenation in the air. The rhythmic patter of rain against our windows is more than just a lullaby; it is a reminder of nature's enduring cycle of life and growth.

Rains are a blessing, each droplet that graces the soil carries with it the promise of new life—of seeds that will sprout into saplings, of flowers that will burst into color, and of trees that will stand tall and strong. This season is not just a feast for the senses but a crucial period of sustenance for the green life,

As we embrace this beautiful season, our school is also celebrating a series of significant events that align perfectly with the spirit of the monsoon. This month, we observed World Conservation Day, a reminder of our responsibility to protect and preserve the natural world. We also celebrated Van Mahotsav, the festival of trees, by planting new saplings around our school campus. The sight of students planting trees in the nourishing rain was a heartwarming reflection of our commitment to a greener future. Additionally, National Tiger Day highlighted the critical need to protect our nation's majestic tigers. Through various activities, our students learned about the importance of biodiversity and the role each species plays in maintaining ecological balance. The spectrum of co academic activities saw children participating enthusiastically in MUN, exhibiting their holiday HW with pride, & welcoming the new friends from AFS-US

Let us also use this time to connect more deeply with nature. Encourage your children to observe the transformations around them—this is an ideal time for nurturing a sense of environmental stewardship in our students, fostering an appreciation for the natural world and its cycles. As we continue through this rainy season, let us cherish the gifts it brings—both the tangible and the intangible. May we find joy in the simplicity of a rainy day, in the warmth of a shared umbrella, and in the growth that comes from the nourishing rains. Wishing you all a beautiful and safe monsoon !
